Soviet Troops Drive Deeper Into Manchuria As Word Of Surrender Comes

SUICIDE ATTACKS MADE

Tokyo Radio Says Kamikaze Raids Damaged Ships Of Halsey's Third Fleet

By United Press
Soviet troops thrust deeper into western Manchuria today while more than 600 American Superfortresses and fighters ripped central Japan, as Tokyo reported that Japan has decided to accept the Potsdam ultimatum to surrender unconditionally.

The Superforts dropped 3,200 tons of bombs and left two arsenals and a clogged railway yard on Honshu wreathed in flames.

Russian tanks and Mongol horsemen swept across the Manchurian wastes for more than 120 miles in the fourth and newest of their offensives during the six days of fighting.

Less than an hour after the last B-29 had turned home from the raids on central Japan, Tokyo made the announcement that Japan has decided to accept the Potsdam declaration. Most of the giant raiders still were on their way back to the Marianas.

At the same time, the Japanese claimed their suicide planes had made another assault against Admiral William F. Halsey's mighty Third Fleet. Radio Tokyo said the suicide planes attacked as late as 12:30 Tokyo time. The Japanese surrender broadcast came at 2:49 p.m.

The Japanese broadcast claimed that five other suicide planes had crashed into an American aircraft carrier off the southeast coast of Okinawa last night.

The 313th heavy bombardment wing hit railway yards at Marifu, only 22 miles west of atomic-bombed Hiroshima, at 12:30 p.m. today with 500-pounds.

At 2:15 p.m., the 58th and 73rd wings blasted the Hikari naval arsenal on the Inland sea and the Osaka army arsenal, the largest in Japan.

Russia, broadcasting three hours after radio Tokyo's surrender message, exhorted her advancing Manchurian armies to overtake the

APS FORGET CHILBLAINS WHEN BIG NEWS BREAKS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14—Radio Tokyo interrupted a broadcast telling of a cure for chilblains to flash its report that Japan has decided to accept Allied surrender terms.

The broadcast on chilblains never was completed.

POST WAR PLANS DUE SOON AFTER PEACE IS MADE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—The lid will be off the government's immediate postwar plans as soon as President Truman proclaims V-J day.

Neil Dalton, director of the domestic branch of the Office of War Information, said a series of announcements by major homefront officials will tell the story of the next moves in reconversion.

Director John W. Snyder of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion is expected to issue a comprehensive peace report. Then Economic Stabilizer William H. Davis, War Production Boss J. A. Krug and Price Chief Chester Bowles are expected to give official reports on their plan for getting the nation started into the new era of peace.

New York, Aug. 14—The nation reacted slowly to the Tokyo broadcast that Japan has decided to surrender unconditionally to the Allies. But all indications pointed to a snow-balling celebration that would increase throughout the day.

Pearl Harbor, where three years, eight months and one week ago the Japanese struck treacherously, set the stage for celebrations which probably will sweep the United States.

Every ship in the harbor lit up like Christmas trees. The warships blew their whistles until they were out of steam.

But in the United States where the enemy broadcast was received in the early morning hours, the first reaction was different.

New York, the nation's largest city, took the news calmly. At 2 to more than 3,000 and was increasing hourly.

Automobiles, their horns blowing loudly, moved slowly down Broadway. Hundreds of servicemen gathered quickly and cheered as they marched down the streets and jumped on the cars.

Detroit was quiet at first. But

Probably the most riotous, spontaneous celebration began in New York's Chinatown almost immediately after the Japanese broadcast.

The Chinese set off firecrackers and the popping went on for hours as they snake-danced through the narrow streets.

Chicago also was slow to react. But police predicted that Chicago would have the wildest celebration in its history.

Police were ordered and told to close all taverns and liquor stores immediately after the enemy forces.

Squad cars began patrolling the streets to prevent a repetition of the 1918 celebration of more than 1,000,000 persons in the loop area. Store windows were wrecked and all saloons were emptied of liquor.

SWISS SAY EARLY MESSAGE NOT LONG AWAITED NIP REPLY

(Continued from Page One) 100 newsmen in his White House office, "as if our long vigil is coming to an end soon—that is, sometime today."

The vigil, interrupted only to permit the snatching of a few hours' sleep from time to time, had lasted since Saturday when the Allies dispatched their reply to the Japanese surrender offer made on Friday.

Ross' statement did not mean that the waiting was entirely over. Nor did it mean that V-J would be official until the instruments of surrender are signed. It did build the hope that World War II—after nearly six bloody years—would end some time this week.

There has been official speculation, here and in London, that the formal surrender ceremonies would be carried out aboard a U. S. battleship in Tokyo bay. London also heard they might take place on bloody Okinawa, the American capture of which doomed Japan—even without the atom bomb.

Ross said this government was consulting with Moscow, London, and Chungking "concerning the simultaneous release of the Japanese note."

"When will the cease fire order be given?" he was asked.

"The President will cover that in his statement to the press," Ross replied without indicating when the statement might be forthcoming.

Ross explained that there would be delay while the Japanese communication was being decoded and coded again for transmission here via the Swiss legation.

Some time earlier President Truman and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes had conferred briefly at the White House.

The President had risen early as usual and breakfasted at 7:15 with his naval aide, Commodore James K. Vardman.

Vardman had kept watch all night and was able to report to Mr. Truman that the Swiss legation here had been informed by its government that the Japanese note was in Bern.

First word of the probable content of the Japanese reply was reported in the 1:49 a. m. Domel broadcast.

The Domel agency's eight word flash touched off a celebration which was becoming worldwide today. It roared up first from American servicemen in the Pacific islands—Hawaii, Guam and the Philippines.

If the dispatch is accurate the war between the United States and Japan may end before Sunday—in its 193rd week.

The Domel message said:

"Flash—flash—Tokyo—14-8—learned imperial message accepting Potsdam declaration forthcoming soon."

The agency interrupted a routine broadcast on the cure for chilblains to send the flash message twice. First word of the surrender dispatch came from the United Press listening post near San Francisco.

Federal communications commission monitors reported long code messages moving from Tokyo radio to the station in Geneva, Switzerland.

A dispatch from Bern, Switzerland, reported that the Japanese legation had advised the Swiss government that Minister Tamao Sakamoto probably would ask for an appointment with the Swiss foreign minister, Dr. Walter Stucki, at 2 p. m. (8 a. m., ewt today.)

Switzerland is the diplomatic go-between in surrender negotiations. Attaches of the Swiss legation in Washington sat up all night, bright and cheerful, ready to relay the expected good news as soon as it arrives.

More than 600 Superforts and fighter planes blasted central Japan with a reminder that time was wasting today as the world waited impatiently for a surrender message. The attackers dropped 3,200 tons of bombs. It may be their last raid. Less than an hour after the last of the bombers returned, Domel flashed its statement that the imperial government was ready to surrender the Empire and Emperor Hirohito.

A crowd of 200 persons gathered in the park in front of the White House within an hour of circulation here of the Domel broadcast. President Truman was up and around the White House at 7:15 a. m., ewt.

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. BLANCHE DEHAVEN
Mrs. Blanche DeHaven, 70, died Tuesday at 9:20 a. m. at her home in Laurelvile. She suffered a heart attack Monday evening while driving the car in Laurelvile.

She was born in Hocking county, the daughter of Allen McClelland and Evelyn Caves McClelland and was a very active member of the Laurelvile Methodist church and Sunday school.

Surviving are her husband, W. P. DeHaven, and three sisters, Miss Amy McClelland and Mrs. Charles White, Laurelvile and Mrs. Carrie Anderson, Columbus. The body has been removed to the Defenbaugh funeral home pending arrangements.

SURRENDER MAY BE SIGNED ON OKINAWA

Battleship Missouri Also Mentioned As Possible Surrender Site

There was an air of restrained excitement in London today, but considerably less tension than was evident in the United States, according to the reports cabled from New York by British correspondents.

Britain will have a two-day holiday on the two days following the day officially proclaimed as V-J day.

Prime Minister Attlee presided over a brief meeting of the British cabinet at 10 Downing street this morning, after which the ministers returned to their respective offices.

A crowd of about 300 cheered the ministers as they entered and left Whitehall.

Afternoon newspapers jubilantly hailed the Japanese broadcast as proof that the war was about over.

The Star said Attlee's office was expected to issue a statement within a few hours. If the Japanese reply is acceptable, the newspaper said, V-J day will be proclaimed for tomorrow.

NATION REACTS SLOWLY TODAY

Sirens sounded in the west Philadelphia section and some automobile horns began honking—giving full indication that a celebration would grow as the day progressed.

Shortly before 4 a. m. more than 200 persons, mostly servicemen, had gathered in Lafayette park across from the White House in Washington.

At Lincoln, Neb., soldiers from a troop train jammed the United Press office, asking: "Is it true? Is the war over? Maybe we won't have to go overseas now."

Warworkers coming off the 4 a. m. shift in Kansas City began impromptu celebrations, screaming and tooting horns as they moved down the main streets. In the residential sections, police reported that some overjoyed citizens who were awakened, dragged out firearms and began shooting in liquor stores.

The show still was going strong at 7 a. m. EWT. Market street was blazing with bonfires in spots and the owl cars were stopped by their flames.

A Tokyo voice transmission to the Orient was intercepted in San Francisco reporting that there would be "a very important announcement" at noon, Tokyo time, tomorrow (11 p. m., EWT today.)

Bolsterous celebrants there, meantime, were using cable car turn tables for merry go rounds. One whooping crowd of soldiers, sailors and Marines appeared to be attempting to take one of the little cars away as a souvenir.

But it was the men on the Pacific islands with tracer bullets to shoot and searchlights and such gadgets to play with who put on the biggest celebration. It seemed that the nearer to Japan the more boisterous the welcome to the prospect of peace.

It was reported from Bern shortly before 9 a. m., EWT that the Japanese reply to the Allied surrender note apparently had reached the Japanese legation and was being deciphered. Minister Sakamoto was all smiles—more or less. Anyway he permitted news men to have a few shots of him today.

In the midst of the hullabaloo there came from the Vatican a dispatch soberly reporting the great satisfaction of Pope Pius XII on receiving news of the Domel broadcast. But Vatican informants said there would be no official manifestation by the holy see until the surrender signature has been officially announced.

Similarly, President Truman will not proclaim V-J day until after the signing ceremony. He will broadcast that day to the people of the United States and the world.

Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley put unemployment compensation first on the reconversion program which Congress will take up when it comes back to work Sept. 4 or 5. The administration's ideas are embodied in the Kilgore bill which would authorize a federal supplement to state payments to provide a maximum of $25 a week for 26 weeks.

Congress rejected the principle of national standard when it passed the war mobilization and reconversion bill last October. Instead, it wrote into the reconversion law a plan of loans to state funds designed to encourage the states to raise their own benefits.

Since then most states have liberalized their own laws, according to information received by Sen. Harold H. Burton, R. O., a strong advocate of states rights in unemployment compensation.

U. S. Completes Draft Of Policy To Govern Occupation Of Japan

It was suggested that the United States, Britain, China and Russia may decide to undertake joint occupation with each of the big four responsible for one of the main enemy home islands—Hokkaido, Honshu, Shikoku and Kyushu.

Because of her major role in the Pacific war, the United States would wield dominant influence in any such program and would undoubtedly be assigned the principal home island of Honshu, on which Tokyo is located.

In event the four powers occupy Japan jointly, the United States would urge adoption of a single, coordinated control policy for the entire country as she did in the case of Germany.

Tremendous long-range problems confront Allied occupation forces. These are a few:

1. Breaking the strangle-hold of the Zaibatsu, the clique that holds virtually all the wealth and power. This group controls all industry and is tied up with the military and the imperial family. For years, it has used the position of the emperor as a cloak for aggression.

2. Revising Japan's economy to concentrate on goods needed for a peaceful way of life—production of foods instead of weapons. At present, Japan raises only 75 percent of her food supply. Until she hikes production, she will have to live on what she has because the United States will not ship food to Japan.

3. Moving the hundreds of thousands of Japanese who have colonized Japan's huge stolen empire back to the home islands. This was said to be a definite U. S. objective.

These sources said the goal of occupation was to create a new Japan which never again could menace the world. In doing this the Allies would foster conditions to make it possible for the Japanese people eventually to select their own government.

BLUE RIBBON TO PLAY GALYEAN'S TEAM TONIGHT

Blue Ribbon will play Galvean's of Portsmouth Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. in the Chillicothe district softball tournament, it was announced late today by Hugh Jennings, district commissioner.

Galvean's protested Saturday night against playing two games and the tournament had been held up until the matter was straightened out.

If Blue Ribbon wins tonight Portsmouth Ramey Feeds will be played Wednesday night with the winner meeting Williamsport Thursday night and the tournament finals being held Friday night.

DIVORCE SUIT FILED

Francis Tatman, charging his absent mate with "having disregarded her marital duties and having been guilty of wilful absence for more than 3 years," filed petition for divorce from Lucile Tatman in common pleas court. He and the defendant, who resides at 565 Lewis avenue, Columbus, were married September 2, 1922, and have no children.

General Douglas MacArthur still was first choice in speculative sweepstakes for supreme Allied commander. But it was believed some officer or officers of lesser rank would meet the Japanese and sign for the Allies. London rumored that the signing would take place tomorrow.

At Lincoln, Neb., soldiers from a troop train jammed the United Press office, asking: "Is it true? Is the war over? Maybe we won't have to go overseas now."

Warworkers coming off the 4 a. m. shift in Kansas City began impromptu celebrations, screaming and tooting horns as they moved down the main streets. In the residential sections, police reported that some overjoyed citizens who were awakened, dragged out firearms and began shooting in the air.

The show still was going strong at 7 a. m. EWT. Market street was blazing with bonfires in spots and the owl cars were stopped by their flames.

A Tokyo voice transmission to the Orient was intercepted in San Francisco reporting that there would be "a very important announcement" at noon, Tokyo time, tomorrow (11 p. m. EWT today.)

Boisterous celebrants there, meantime, were using cable car turntables for merry go rounds. One whooping crowd of soldiers, sailors and Marines appeared to be attempting to take one of the little cars away as a souvenir.

Cruising nightowl taxis and all-night eating spots got the first word on their radios. The immediate reaction appeared to be—"Is that official?" or "what does Washington say?"

Little clots of people gathered at the wide intersection of Broad and High streets, center of the Columbus downtown district, and discussed the news without apparent excitement. Every car that passed with its radio blaring added disjointed bits of additional information.

It was reported from Bern shortly before 9 a. m. EWT that the Japanese reply to the Allied surrender note apparently had reached the Japanese legation and was being deciphered. Minister Sakamoto was all smiles—more or less. Anyway he permitted news men to have a few shots of him today.

In the midst of the hullabaloo there came from the Vatican a dispatch soberly reporting the great satisfaction of Pope Pius XII on receiving news of the Domel broadcast. But Vatican informants said there would be no official manifestation by the holy see until the surrender signature has been officially announced.

Similarly, President Truman will not proclaim V-J day until after the signing ceremony. He will broadcast that day to the people they cited the increases in benefits voted by state legislatures this year.

Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley put unemployment compensation first on the reconversion program which Congress will take up when it comes back to work Sept. 4 or 5. The administration's ideas are embodied in the Kilgore bill which would authorize a federal supplement to state payments to provide a maximum of $25 a week for 26 weeks.

Congress rejected the principle of a national standard when it passed the war mobilization and reconversion bill last October. Instead, it wrote into the reconversion law a plan of loans to state funds designed to encourage the states to raise their own benefits.

Since then, most states have liberalized their own laws, according to information received by Sen. Harold H. Burton, R., O., a strong advocate of states rights in unemployment compensation.

London dispatches reported that the signing would take place either on an Allied warship or on the hard-won island of Okinawa. General Douglas MacArthur still was first choice in speculative sweepstakes for supreme Allied commander. But it was believed some officer or officers of lesser rank would meet the Japanese and sign for the Allies. London rumored that the signing would take place tomorrow.

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. BLANCHE DEHAVEN
Mrs. Blanche DeHaven, 70, died Tuesday at 9:20 a. m. at her home in Laurelville. She suffered a heart attack Monday evening while driving the car in Laurelville.

She was born in Hocking county, the daughter of Allen McClelland and Evelyn Caves McClelland and was a very active member of the Laurelville Methodist church and Sunday school.

Surviving are her husband, W. P. DeHaven, and three sisters, Miss Amy McClelland, and Mrs. Charles White, Laurelville, and Mrs. Carrie Anderson, Columbus.

The body has been removed to the DeHaven funeral home pending arrangements.

for Japan's economic disarmament and control still are being formulated.

It was suggested that the United States, Britain, China and Russia may decide to undertake joint occupation with each of the big four responsible for one of the main enemy home islands—Hokkaido, Honshu, Shikoku and Kyushu.

Because of her major role in the Pacific war, the United States would wield dominant influence in any such program and would undoubtedly be assigned the principal home island of Honshu, on which Tokyo is located.

In event the four powers occupy Japan jointly, the United States would urge adoption of a single, coordinated control policy for the entire country as she did in the case of Germany.

Tremendous long-range problems confront Allied occupation forces. These are a few:

1. Breaking the stranglehold of the Zaibatsu, the clique that holds virtually all the wealth and power. This group controls all industry and is tied up with the military and the imperial family. For years, it has used the position of the emperor as a cloak for aggression.

2. Revising Japan's economy to concentrate on goods needed for a peaceful way of life—production of foods instead of weapons. At present, Japan raises only 75 percent of her food supply. Until she hikes production, she will have to live on what she has because the United States will not ship food to Japan.

3. Moving the hundreds of thousands of Japanese who have colonized Japan's huge stolen empire back to the home islands. This was said to be a definite U. S. objective.

These sources said the goal of occupation was to create a new Japan which never again could menace the world. In doing this the Allies would foster conditions to make it possible for the Japanese people eventually to select their own government.

BLUE RIBBON TO PLAY GALYEAN'S TEAM TONIGHT

Blue Ribbon will play Galyeon's on Portsmouth Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. PWT said when the big news broke, San Francisco was up and about.

The great Pacific embarkation point thronged with soldiers and sailors who let go in the hell-for-leather spirit of the old west. The citizens and their guests ripped up spare parts of the city—street signs, wreckage of War Bond booths and such—for their bonfires. Police reported some looting of liquor stores.

The show still was going strong at 7 a. m. EWT. Market street was blazing with bonfires in spots and the owl cars were stopped by their flames.

RECONVERSION GROUP PLANNED

ments and agencies will be represented: Agriculture, Budget Bureau, Commerce, Federal Housing Administration, Federal Reserve Board, Foreign Economic Administration, Interior, Justice, Labor, Maritime Commission; National Housing Agency, Navy, Office of Contract Settlement, Office of Economic Stabilization, Office of Price Administration, Retraining and Redeployment Administration, Smaller War Plants Corporation, State, Surplus Property Board, Veterans Administration, War, War Labor Board, War Manpower Commission, War Production Board, and OWNR.

Meanwhile, reconversion plans continue to go forward. OPA sources revealed that rationing of new cars will be lifted before the end of the year, as soon as essential users have had an opportunity to buy new cars.

The WPB expects 500,000 cars to come off the assembly line this year instead of the 250,000 previously ticketed for production. Restrictions have already been lifted on the use of asbestos in the production of clutch fabrics and brake linings.

The ANNUAL CAMP MEETING OPENS HERE WEDNESDAY

From August 15 to 26 the twenty-eighth annual camp meeting of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union of Ohio will convene at Mount of Praise, East Ohio street, Circleville, with evangelistic services being held twice daily.

Evangelists for the event will be the Rev. T. M. Anderson, Wilmore, Ky., the Rev. H. M. Couchenour, Boynton, Pa., the Rev. J. Paul Stewart, Ashland, Ky., and the Rev. E. Clay Milby, Bentonville, Ark.

Preceding the camp meeting, the thirty-seventh annual council of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union of Ohio will hold a convention, at 2:30 p. m. on August 15.

One of the highlights of the meeting will be the dedication of a structure to the missionary cause.

Regular service hours at the camp meeting will be at 7, 8, 10:30 a. m. and 1, 2, 6:30 and 8 p. m. They will include prayer and praise services, missionary meetings, bible teaching and special children's services.

There have been instances of hospital coaches on the Pennsylvania Railroad which were not air-conditioned," Martin said.

"This amazing railroad order to various operating officials along the lines of P. R. R. is one of the most astounding orders since the war began, placing American servicemen in a separate category from civilians who can pay fancy prices for air-conditioning," he said.

Because of restriction dormitories, dining rooms and other buildings have not been built. Regularly scheduled services will be held at the camp grounds through Sunday, August 25.

JAP BLUFF

WE Americans long ago acquired the reputation of being the world's champion bluffers, and perhaps there was a time when we deserved that estimate. But if so, we have long since outgrown it, in favor of hewing to the line and talking straight and practising what we promise. Whatever bluff, pretense and misrepresentation there is today, in connection with the present war, comes from the Japs.

"America has asked for it; now she will get it," the Japs' English propaganda has been saying, aping our own slang.

"Japan is fully aware of the true aspects of atomic energy, and the Anglo-United States nations must have drawn on the result of Japanese researches. Japan will surely put into execution what she inevitably must, and when thousands upon thousands, even millions, of Anglo-American military personnel meet their tragic end, their blood will be on the heads of Truman and Attlee, who have been responsible for advocating the criminal effects of this inhuman weapon."

Oh, well, as the Scripture says, "let the heathen rage and the people imagine a vain thing." The American record is clear, and American ability to perform what it sets out to do is, and will continue to be, a matter of historical record never surpassed in any war. As for expert scientific knowledge, it is known that America leads the world.

NEW WEAPONS

NEW weapons such as the atomic bomb alter history, but sometimes take their time about it. Gunpowder was used in 1346 when the English beat the French at Crecy, but at Agincourt nearly 70 years later the English victory was won not by guns but by the long bow. Not till 1453 when Turkish artillery battered down the walls of Constantinople did gunpowder become a decisive factor.

The secret weapon which altered most drastically the world's history was the so-called Greek fire with which the Byzantine empire repelled four sieges of Constantinople and saved at least Eastern Europe from becoming Mohammedan. Though the exact composition of Greek fire is undetermined, it seems to have contained quicklime, sulphur and naphtha or petroleum and burst into flame when wet. It was the ancestor of the flame throwers of today.

It will be time to snuggle up to the Japs and pat them on the back when we find that they have really repented of their sins.

It is betraying no secret to say that from now on there is going to be a tremendous demand for homes.

WASHINGTON Report

Senator Ferguson Wants Robot Letter Examiner

Number of New Patents Drops Because of War

By HELEN ESSARY

Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Senator Homer Ferguson (R) of Michigan, has an idea for an idle inventor. It's a machine that will go through a pile of letters and pick out the ones that should be answered.

The machine should have a discerning mind, a sharp judgment, a bell that rings, a hand that discards and a large wastepaper basket attachment.

The senator has mentioned his hopes to several other members of Congress and to other public officials whose daily mail mounts high and discouragingly. It would be the greatest invention of the age, say one and all.

Think of the cash and the publicity and the gliders and automobiles and new ice boxes the invention will win you, young fellow, in the post-war world!

• SPEAKING OF INVENTIONS, you seldom hear a syllable about the patent office. Last year its number of patents dropped to 50,000. Because

Not too long ago the patent office was one of the most talked-of departments of the government. Old guide books gave many full chapters to "The Bureau so vast and imposing in all its proportions."

The patent office has been nimble, too. It jumped from the guardian ship of the treasury department to the interior, and last to the department of commerce.

When the patent office was young its receipts were in excess of its expenditures. Imagine. Just imagine! Once the building in which the patent office was quartered was regarded as the most had never occurred to me that pirates used razors. Maybe they were trying to live up to the Gilbert and Sullivan patter.

THE NEWS NEWS BEHIND

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—Characters in the Pétain treason trial looked as if they had been borrowed from Daumier, the artist who raised cartooning of French justice into imperishable masterpieces.

Daumier presented weazened attorneys, judges resembling pawnshop proprietors, and juries selected from the gutters late at night. If any of his courtroom characters represented benignity, knowability, honest dignity—in fact any attribute except selfishness—I failed to see that picture. His was not the historic conception of French justice occasionally raised by remembrances of what happened to Joan of Arc, Dreyfuss, Danton and most of the other liberators of the revolution, but the utter futility of justice among men obsessed with thirst for gold, preferments or power. He portrayed justice on the pawn-brokers level.

The inside story here on Vichy and the characters of the Palais de Justice never ran far contrary to the evidence hinted in Admiral Leahy's letter. Pétain, in his upper eighties, was not believed in Washington to have a mind of his own. He was never able to control, but was always controlled. A man whose intentions were accepted as senilely honorable by such an astute, intimate observer as Leahy (who was sent to Vichy by Mr. Roosevelt solely for that observing purpose.)

Pétain suffered more ill-health mid-way in his regime, and when the Nazis moved Laval on him, no one paid attention to him thereafter, either here or in France. We did not need an observer in Vichy then. We could see him plainly in all his acts, at any distance.

Laval, on the other hand, has a mind perfected in duplicity from long zeal and practice, and an original talent for political villainy, to the point where no one customarily trusted him, even before France fell and he went to Vichy.

No one could possibly know for sure what side he was on at any time, for the art of his mental mobility in commercialized French politics of the day was what distinguished him in that sordid world.

Swarthy, shifty-eyed, he presented no other claim to fame. Since he dealt with President Hoover as premier of France, his inner record has been challenged successfully only by certain Japanese statesmen.

His was the perfect type of mind to control debilitated Pétain at Vichy for Nazis.

As for the other characters at the trial, most came one way or another from the cesspool of French political leadership before the war, a leadership which always fell before Hitler whoever was premier, and which should have stopped him at his first step into the Rhineland when it was powerful and enjoyed the backing of the world, with the best army in the world, while Hitler had nothing then.

They came out the pre-war chamber of deputies, which was a political pawnshop. Their deteriorated and degrading civilization and governments, handed from one to another and back again like a corrupt legacy, developed such violent troubles for the world as the sitdown strike, the commercial political leadership of labor and non-payment of war debts, while collecting exorbitant reparations.

Their greediness was the real cause of the failure of the treaty of Versailles, and the ensuing ruin brought to the world. Their policies permitted a housepainter to (Continued on Page Six) completely magnificent collection of stones and mortar in Washington. Its show cases held relics of the early days of the republic. Most of these relics are now scattered and anxiously-guarded at the library of Congress, the state department and the Smithsonian institution. Likewise at Mt. Vernon.

Now that Mr. Truman is back from signing treaties, or papers at Potsdam, he should have a look at the early treaties of the United States with foreign powers. The patent office once housed many of these documents. King George IV of England signed the treaty of peace in 1814—ending the war of 1812. "Bonaparte," in a nervous hand, sealed the 1803 treaty with France.

Several French monarchs wrote their names on parchment, making alliances with the struggling young America. King Louis XVI agreed in delicate penmanship, to give the aid by France to the rebelling colonies.

The original draft of the Declaration of Independence used to be in the patent office. So were many George Washington relics, including his personal Revolutionary War camp equipment, tents and flagpoles. And the bed curtains worked for him by the faithful Martha.

Models of all possible patents were formerly required by the patent office. Then it was really fun to go to see the patent office exhibit. Almost everything the inventive American mind could be active in connection with public, community or fraternal bodies. Tact and honest efforts may pay in business, communications, agencies and in personal affairs.

Abraham Lincoln was an inventor. The patent office was proud of his model of "framework of the hull of a western steamboat with false bottom beneath the keel, and bellows and air bags." The ambition of this contraption, "Model for Sinking and Raising Boats by Bellows Below"—Lincoln, May 30, 1849," was to help boats over the sand bars of western rivers. The contraption did not work.

The patent office itself hardly knows what has become of its old treasures. For example, the hat worn by President Lincoln, the night of his assassination; the coat worn by Andrew Jackson during the Battle of New Orleans, and the razor of dear old Captain Cook.

The razor, it is said, was recovered from the natives of the island where he was murdered after he had done all the murdering he could manage.

It had never occurred to me that pirates used razors. Maybe they were trying to live up to the Gilbert and Sullivan patter.

Infected Ear Can Be Serious

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AN EARACHE can be a very painful condition and if neglected it may turn out to be quite serious. When the middle part of the ear is infected, the condition is known as otitis media. In general, there are two kinds of otitis media. One is known as suppurative and the other as non-suppurative. In the suppurative type, there is discharge from the ear. In the non-suppurative, no such discharge occurs. The non-suppurative type, as a rule, is a short-lived disorder, but it does continue for a long period of time in some cases.

The acute or short-lived condition is often called acute tubal catarrh. It is caused by an infection in the nose or upper part of the throat which leads to infection of the eustachian tube which connects the middle part of the ear and throat.

Blowing Nose

Blowing the nose improperly, and swimming are sometimes responsible for transfer of infection to the eustachian tube. This infection causes the lining membrane of the tube to swell and blocks the passageway through it. Then the air in the middle ear is absorbed, leaving a vacuum. The ear drum is then drawn in because of the vacuum and moderate pain may be present. There is also a feeling of fullness in the ear and head noises or ringing in the ears occurs. Dizziness may be present in some instances.

The treatment consists, first of all, in getting rid of those conditions which may lead to the disorder such as enlarged adenoids, sore throat, or improper blowing of the nose. To relieve the pain and discomfort of the condition, not applications or the use of drops of phenol and glycerin may be helpful. There is a method of blowing air through the eustachian tubes which, when properly carried out by the doctor, may lead to complete relief of the condition. However, this must be done gently and not at all if there is a great deal of swelling of the eustachian tubes.

Middle-Ear Disturbance

The chronic middle-ear disturbance may result from recurrent acute attacks or repeated sore throats. In this condition, the opening of the eustachian tube is likely to be swollen and blocked and there is some interference with the passage of air in and out of the middle ear.

Ringing in the ears is often the only symptom mentioned by the patient. There may be some deafness, particularly for low tones, and occasionally there is also dizziness. The ear drum is often hardened and thickened.

Insofar as treatment of chronic middle-ear disturbance is concerned, once permanent changes in the tissues have occurred, there is not a great deal which can be done. However, it is important to clear up infections in the nose and throat, and to keep further attacks of inflammation of the eustachian tube from developing.

In her office that Sunday morning, she eyed him stormily. " Didn't I tell you that you were not to come here again in the daytime?"

"Yes, m'beauty, but rules were made to be broken." He took a paperweight from her desk and jiggled it.

Rab arched his dark brows, shrugged. "It listens like a dirty crack! That's gratitude for you! I risk my only life and limbs and then get only hard words . . . For this routine: The victim ate his sandwich with the briefcase beside him. He took it to the washroom with him; he toted it to the bar—and he didn't drink. Coulda been the Super-deooper Diamond the way he kept his eye on it." Rab turned his eyes toward his nose. "He became cross-eyed from the strain."

"How did you get it?"

CHAPTER NINETEEN

Sukey went out and returned with the dog. With Sukey gone to bed and Gran dosed with aspirin, Eleonore sat down before the radio, the dog at her feet. Dialing the nearest station, a news broadcast came on first, and the news that May-day was not reassuring. It was, indeed, dismal . . .

A little comedy, thought Eleonore, is the right thing for me tonight. She switched to another station and heard a burst of studio laughter and applause. Then drowning out the Yankee drawl of the comedian, came those sharp clarion dots-and-dashes, sharp with wicked import. An eerie feeling that the sender was close, perhaps only a few rods away, wired each hair of her head with distress. Was Clem listening to too? Did he go to the Chief?

The harsh signals stopped suddenly. The voice of the radio favorite bloomed once more. Amid the responsive laughter, Dumbo stirred, then padded across the room, his nervous body tense to some outside sound. Then he leaped at the front window, giving short frantic barks.

Eleonore followed and pulled him down from the curtains. Outside the dusk was of that magical transition before complete dark, a melting of outline, a blurring of objects. Then the headlights of a car, coming up the road and rounding the curve, loomed.

Dumbo kept barking and plunging. The car streaked past. Another followed almost immediately. She heard a loud report. A bullet shattered the window pane above her head, whizzed across the library, and thudded into a thick volume of "Papers of the Presidents."

Fellowship Group Is Honored At St. Paul's Church

At the meeting of the Stoutsville St. Paul's Youth Fellowship, Monday evening at the church, members of the St. John's Fellowship were guests.

Devotions were in charge of Gail Leist and they consisted of a song, "Living For Jesus" and scripture, followed with a song. Prayer was given by Betty Cave and Kenneth Rittinger.

After the business meeting the St. John's group offered a program, which included a trumpet solo by Rachel Drum, vocal solo, Patty Hartsook, a playlet by the St. John's group and a vocal duet by Rachel Drum and Betty Cave.

Several games were played, followed by refreshments served by the committee in charge.

Present for the meeting were Blanche Pennington, Ida Mae Scott, Martha Bolendar, Maxine Rittinger, the Rev. Mr. Moorhead and Mrs. Moorhead, Kenneth Rittinger, Gail Leist, Paul Marshall, Curtis Scott and the advisor, Mildred Wertman.

Visitors from the St. John's group included Rachel Drum, Patty Hartsook, Miriam Baird, Betty Cave, Mrs. Pennington and son, Sammy.

Contrary to general opinion, the so-called standard gauge of railroad tracks is the same in England and the United States, namely 4 feet, 8½ inches, measured between the inside running edge of the rails. However, the clearance of bridges, stations, and buildings adjacent is less in England, making it impossible for British trains to operate in America, reports the British Railways.

Don't hang light, billowy curtains in the kitchen near the stove. Records of accidents report many cases of fire caused by blowing curtains; of scalds caused by curtains that caught on a saucepan handle, overturning the pan's contents on the cook. Curtains that may be all right in winter may be a hazard in summer when the window is open most of the time.

DISCHARGED VET
WANTS CHANCEOSU Veterans Association
Leaders Say Ex-Soldiers
Hate 'Readjustment'

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 14—"The average veteran is not punch drunk and he doesn't want things on a silver platter. He's just another Joe—minus the G. I. now—who wants a chance."

The speaker was Edward L. Prey, 27-year-old president of the Ohio State university Veterans' association, an impromptu organization of some 800 war veterans intent on solving their own readjustment problems.

Their greatest task, Prey said, was to convince the average civilian that they're not "glory boys of the war" and that the average veteran is not an adjustment problem.

Harold G. Schneider, of Columbus, youthful veteran of the South Pacific sea fighting and vice president of the association put it this way.

"Our problems aren't unique," he said. "V-A handles the problems that face every college student. Only we're also dogged by 'adjustment.' What a word! Even our professors have been roped in. Actually 90 per cent of that adjustment hangs on the vet—and he knows it."

"Most of the veterans know what they want and generally it's for a specific vocational purpose which will enable them to get jobs and get married as soon as possible," Schneider said, "and it's the purpose of the association to try to help them."

Schneider said some veterans who had returned to school under the G. I. bill of rights were impatient with courses which did not seem directly linked with a job although they realized that the colleges could not let down their education bars completely.

That's where the veterans' association comes in. Working through committees handpicked by the veterans themselves, the association tries to eliminate the frictions which may develop between veterans and the university.

"Members of our advancement and investigation committee, for instance, talk over teacher-student problems with both the student and teacher in an effort to reach an understanding," explained Wal-

DISCHARGED VET WANTS CHANCE

OSU Veterans Association Leaders Say Ex-Soldiers Hate 'Readjustment'

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 14.—The average veteran is not punch drunk and he doesn't want things on a silver platter. He's just another Joe—minus the G. I. now—who wants a chance.

The speaker was Edward L. Prey, of San Antonio, Tex., 27-year-old president of the Ohio State university Veterans association, an impromptu organization of some 800 war veterans intent on solving their own readjustment problems.

Their greatest task, Prey said, was to convince the average civilian that they're not "glory boys of the war" and that the average veteran is not an adjustment problem.

Harold G. Schneider, of Columbus, youthful veteran of the South Pacific sea fighting and vice president of the association put it this way:

"Our problems aren't unique," he said. "V-A handles the problems that face every college student. Only we're also dogged by 'adjustment.' What a word! Even our professors have been roped in. Actually 90 per cent of that adjustment hangs on the vet—and he knows it."

Most of the veterans know what they want and generally it's for a specific vocational purpose which will enable them to get jobs and get married as soon as possible," Schneider said, and it's the purpose of the association to try to help them.

Schneider said some veterans who had returned to school under the G. I. bill of rights were impatient with courses which did not seem directly linked with a job although they realized that the colleges could not let down their education bars completely.

That's where the veterans' association comes in. Working through committees handicapped by the veterans themselves, the association tries to eliminate the frictions which may develop between veterans and the university.

"Members of our advisement and investigation committee, for instance, talk over teacher-student problems with both the student and teacher in an effort to reach an understanding," explained Walter Frampton, of Tipp City, O., secretary-treasurer of the group.

"V-A is like a student government committee as far as mediation is concerned. On the other hand, it's more like a fraternity when it comes to giving the boys a social life and group feeling," he said.

V-A has another function too. It acts as a safety valve because it gives the veterans a chance to get together and air their "gripes," Schneider said. He added that such sessions also give the veteran a true picture of condition, preventing future disillusionment.

AUSSIES STATE HIROHITO SHOULD FACE CHARGES

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14—The Australian radio said last night that the Australian cabinet believes that the war crimes commission should place charges against Emperor Hirohito.

"What form the punishment should take, if he were convicted, is not considered by the government to be a matter calling for its consideration," the broadcast said. "But a charge should be undertaken by the war crimes commission."

A Canberra dispatch was quoted as saying senior members of Australia's cabinet think that because Hirohito led Japan into the war and fought without mercy, he cannot be considered a mere puppet.
